This report is dedicated to the women, children and men in Nevada who lost their lives due to domestic violence.

In 2014, the Nevada Network Against Domestic Violence (NNADV) identified there were at least 19 fatal domestic violence incidences in Nevada documented in published news stories in print media and through publically available police reports.

Overview of the Domestic Violence Homicides in Nevada Report

According to the Centers for Disease Control (CDC), the National Intimate Partner and Sexual Violence Survey (NISVS) indicates that almost half of the women (48.1%) and almost one-third of men (30.9%) of men living in Nevada have experienced rape, physical violence, and/or stalking by an intimate partner.¹ Sadly, domestic violence homicide can be the tragic outcome of a violent relationship.

The Nevada Network Against Domestic Violence has tracked domestic violence homicides for 19 years by reviewing news reports and police homicide listings - producing a compilation of the incidences. Each incident received a varying degree of attention from reporters, ranging from multi-story investigative reporting to simple one-paragraph crime reports. As such, the descriptions in the report should not be considered an attempt to capture the full complexity of the events.

What Domestic Violence Homicides in Nevada Report measures

Nevada has a very broad statutory definition regarding who can be a victim of domestic violence. Nevada Revised Statutes defines domestic violence to include spouses, former spouses, family members, persons who have or had a dating relationship, persons with a child or children in common, the children of two persons, and persons cohabitating together.²

NNADV limits this reports to homicides that are intimate partner related (spouse, former spouse, former or current dating relationship, and/or having children in common.) To be included in this report, each homicide was identified as an intimate partner violence related incident; the deaths resulted from violence between adults who were either current or past intimate partners. This report also includes the number of perpetrator deaths, children, family members, current partners, and law enforcement killed.

Why does NNADV limit the definition regarding domestic violence? The focus and expertise of NNADV's and our partner agencies' work is ending intimate partner violence. As such, we limited the focus of our report to reflect our focus solely. This in no way negates the devastating impacts of other homicide classifications.

Limitations of the Domestic Violence Homicides in Nevada Report

NNADV relies solely on publicly accessible information to create this report. It is likely that some homicides are not reported in the media or if it was reported the intimate partner nexus was not identified. As such, NNADV cannot state this is a definitive number of domestic violence homicides, but it is the number NNADV has identified.

Overview of Domestic Violence Homicides in Nevada for 2014

In 2014, NNADV identified at least 19 incidents in which someone lost their lives due to domestic violence. In these incidents:

- Fourteen women were killed by partners or ex-partners.
- Four men killed by partners or ex-partners.
- One male perpetrator killed during a domestic homicide.
- Four male perpetrators' suicide deaths followed domestic violence homicide or attempted homicide.

Cause of death

National studies show that when there is a handgun present in a household where domestic violence is occurring, the chances of someone being killed increases 500 percent.³

In 2014, eight of the 18 victim deaths (44 percent) were due to gunshot wounds; 5 or 28 percent were due to stab wounds; 3 or 17 percent were due to blunt force trauma; 1 or 6 percent was due to drowning; and 1 or 6 percent was due to strangulation.⁴

Average Age

The average age for victims in 2014 was 44.3 years of age.

³ J.C. Campbell and others, "Risk factors for femicide in abusive relationships: results from a multisite case control study," American Journal of Public Health 93 (7) (2003): 1089–1097.

⁴ Note: In one incident, it was an attempted murder and suicide; however, the perpetrator only succeed in killing himself. Hence why there is 19 incidents and 18 victims.

Counties where incidences occurred

Due to the Nevada's population disbursement, it is unsurprising that the majority of domestic violence homicides occurred in the primary urban area of Clark County. Carson City and the rural counties of Nevada account for less than 10% of the total population of the state, yet 20% of the domestic violence homicides occurred in these rural areas.

- Clark County had 13 domestic violence homicides or 68 percent.
- Washoe County had 2 domestic violence homicides or 11 percent.
- Douglas, Lyon, and White Pine Counties each had 1 domestic violence homicide equaling 5 percent.
- Carson City had 1 or 5 percent of the domestic violence homicides.
